

Season's Greetings

I hope this years Christmas letter finds you and your family in good health. The years are stacking up on us all and I guess I have to add that we are feeling our age these days.

I continue to work at my many different art projects. Currently I have several ceramic pieces a photograph and some knitting in the December show at the Arts council Gallery. It's a good venue for me as it's all small works for sale and sometimes I make a few dollars for Christmas.

Peter & Willy still go on a long morning walk every day which gives them both the exercise they need. Willy has been sick this year with Rocky Mountain spotted fever. The vet caught it in time, but giving two antibiotic pills every day for the next 6-8 weeks is not fun. He is improving.

The drought broke this year with too much rain (feast or famine) there was quite a bit of flooding and the county was declared a disaster area, but we were lucky this time and had few problems from the rain.

Peter's mother turned 97 this year and continues to struggle on. We see her frequently as she lives less than 2 miles away. Our 100 year plus Adobe continues to take up much of our time and money. At this point I would say it is one of our life projects. Peter has a new one, documenting the all birds and flowers of the Gallinas River where he and Willy spend their mornings walking around and seeing, smelling and photographing whatever they find. He is planning a website.

I can't think of much more to say except I hope that your Holiday season is peaceful and lovely.

With all our Love and best wishes
